The governor, who spoke at the Ekimogun Day 2011 celebration, held at the Oba Adesan-oye Civic Centre, Ondo town, said the projects, particularly the road projects, would be speedily executed during the current dry season.

The governor, who lamented the slow pace of work on some of the roads, however, said the contract for the dualisation of roads in Ondo town had been given to a new contractor in order to ensure that the project is completed in time.

He said the development efforts going on across the state were to ensure that Ondo State becomes a model to all other states in Nigeria.

Mimiko, who lauded the participation of Ondo indigenes in the programme sponsored by Globacom, also highlighted the development programmes and projects being implemented in Ondo town.

He explained that the state government intended to create a corridor of medical excellence in Ondo town with the establishment of the Gani Fawehinmi Diagnostic Centre, the Trauma and Emergency Centre and the Mother and Child Hospital around the same area.

He stated that apart from the health sector, the government intend to fight poverty and unemployment among the people with agriculture, as the Epe Farm City in Ondo East Local Government area had been completed.

The governor, however, solicited the support of the people of the state to enable him to realise his vision of turning the state to tourists and investors' haven.

The Osemawe of Ondo kingdom, Oba, Adesimbo Kiladejo, urged the people of the community to continue to commit themselves and their resources to promote the economic development and foster good governance.
